

Determine variations or probability distributions of input factors

Create building energy models based on input variations

Run energy models

Collect simulation results

Run sensitivity analysis

Present sensitivity analysis results